Tell Bruno about your business. Review the website. Choose how to launch.

Start with facts, not a blank design canvas. Bruno writes and designs your first website from your answers, links and references. This guide follows a new company site, then shows the separate personal-site offer editor. Preview, editing and publication are different actions.

Before you start

- Use an email address you control. The save-progress email identifies your saved lead/account; the public contact email is a different field later in the intake.
- Bring your business facts, any existing logo and pictures you have permission to use. You do not need to write polished page copy or design the layout yourself.
- The illustrated website and all names, dates, emails and responses are fictional examples. No logo generation, website generation, publication, email, account creation, payment or domain purchase was performed for these screenshots.

These screenshots show the actual Bruno interface with fictional Atelier Demo details and simulated responses. Requests, saves and results are examples, not real customer records or live provider actions.

Redesign my website is a separate starting path. Enter the public website address you want Bruno to redesign.

Choose Show me iAmBruno's redesign, then supply the save-progress email. The redesign path asks for confirmation before its final build; it does not repeat every new-site question shown next.

Use only a site you are authorized to work on. This screenshot shows the choice; no external website was researched or redesigned for the guide.

Save progress with an email you control

The screenshot shows a web interface for iAmBruno. At the top left, there is a '← Back' button. The main heading is 'Let's build your website', with a subtext 'iAmBruno™ will keep moving. The next section is titled 'Where should I send your website?' with a subtext 'I'll save everything you've given me and email your finished website link when it is ready.' There are two numbered steps: 1. An input field containing 'maya@example.com'. 2. An orange button labeled 'Save my progress and continue'.

If you have a website or public social/business links, add them one at a time. Use the notes box for corrections and priorities.

Analyze links and write my bio asks Bruno to use those sources. Source content still needs your factual review; a public page may be outdated.

Our example chooses I don't have anything yet so we can explain the business directly. No external research is performed in these screenshots.

WHAT HAPPENS NEXT

You can supply existing context without writing finished marketing copy.

Give Bruno the facts it needs to write

← Back

Let's build your website Step 4 of 6

iAmBruno™ will keep moving. You will never be left hanging.

Tell iAmBruno™ what this business is about.

1 Atelier Demo is a creative coffee studio. We welcome independent makers and small local teams for Friday Coffee mornings and creative meetups. We need a clear experience page, our story and a way to ask about a visit. Friday Coffee is 23 October 9–10:30AM. This is fictional guide data.

2 Write my bio

Atelier Demo · Example account and simulated responses.

- 1 Your factual notes.
- 2 Ask Bruno to draft the bio.

Describe what you do, who you serve and the experience or offer the website should explain. Include accurate dates and constraints where relevant.

Plain notes are enough. Bruno writes the polished bio from this information; do not invent awards, prices, testimonials or services to fill a box.

Choose Write my bio to request the draft. Our response is simulated with coherent fictional facts.

WHAT HAPPENS NEXT

A written proposal appears for your review.

Review Bruno's written bio

The screenshot shows a web interface for reviewing a bio. At the top left, there is a '← Back' button. The main heading is 'Let's build your website' with a subtext 'iAmBruno™ will keep moving. You will never be left hanging.' and a progress indicator 'Step 5 of 6'. Below this, a section titled 'Review iAmBruno™'s bio before we continue.' contains a text box with the bio: 'Atelier Demo is a fictional creative coffee studio that brings people together around thoughtful coffee and conversation. It welcomes independent makers and local teams for Friday Coffee mornings and creative meetups.' Below the text box is an orange button labeled 'Approve and continue'. Numbered callouts 1, 2, and 3 point to the bio text, the approve button, and the back button respectively.

Atelier Demo · Example account and simulated responses.

- 1 Bruno's proposed bio, editable for corrections.
- 2 Approve this version.
- 3 Return to an earlier intake step.

Read the proposed bio for names, offers, audience and claims. Correct a fact directly if needed.

You can accept a good proposal as it is. Editing is optional; approval is the deliberate step that moves this text into the business context.

Use Back if you need to correct an earlier answer, then choose Approve and continue when the bio is accurate.

Choose Continue to assets when this context is right. Personal sites use the different offer controls shown in the last three chapters.

WHAT HAPPENS NEXT

The website intake has a factual business structure to work from.

Attach your real reference pictures

The screenshot shows a web interface for iAmBruno. At the top, there's a '← Back' button. Below it, the heading 'Let's build your website' is followed by the text 'iAmBruno™ will keep moving. You will never be left hanging.' and a progress bar. The main section is titled 'Add ad-lib images for iAmBruno™ to use.' with a subtext: 'Upload 3 to 10 images maximum for the brand, company, products, or visual world iAmBruno™ should lean into.' Below this, there's a section labeled 'Ad-lib Images'. It contains three numbered steps: 1. A large orange box with the text 'Click here OR drag and drop Images here' and '3 to 10 Images maximum.' 2. Two rows of input fields. The first row contains 'Atelier-coffee-reference.webp' and a 'Saved' status. The second row contains 'Studio-team-reference.webp' and a 'Saved' status. 3. - 3 Continue to the design direction.

Use the image upload area for your brand, products, projects, team or visual world. The interface explains the picture allowance for the selected audience.

Saved filenames confirm that references are attached. Uploading a product photograph does not establish its specifications, stock count or rights.

WHAT HAPPENS NEXT

Bruno starts the final website build after confirmation.

Let the website build finish

Atelier Demo · Example account and simulated responses.

1 The current progress message.

2 The work stages.

The real progress interface describes the work while the build request runs. A working label is not proof of a finished site.

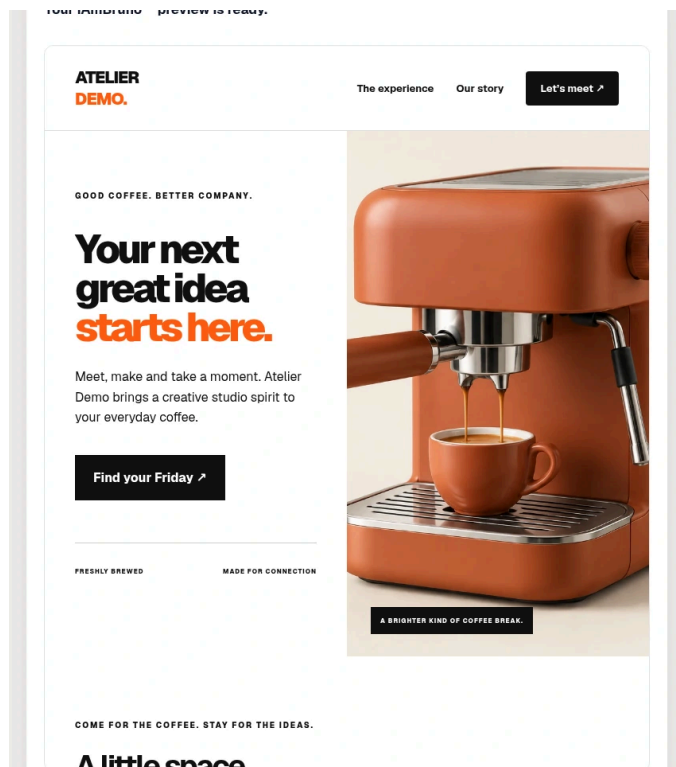

Avoid repeatedly submitting the same final build. The saved completed preview is reused when you refresh; use its editing controls for later changes.

All work in this guide is simulated. The screen is not evidence of a new paid generation or a promised completion time.

WHAT HAPPENS NEXT

A successful response opens the working website preview.

Inspect the actual website preview

Atelier Demo · Example account and simulated responses.

The preview now contains a coherent website, not an empty form. Check the business name, main message, photography, offers and contact information.

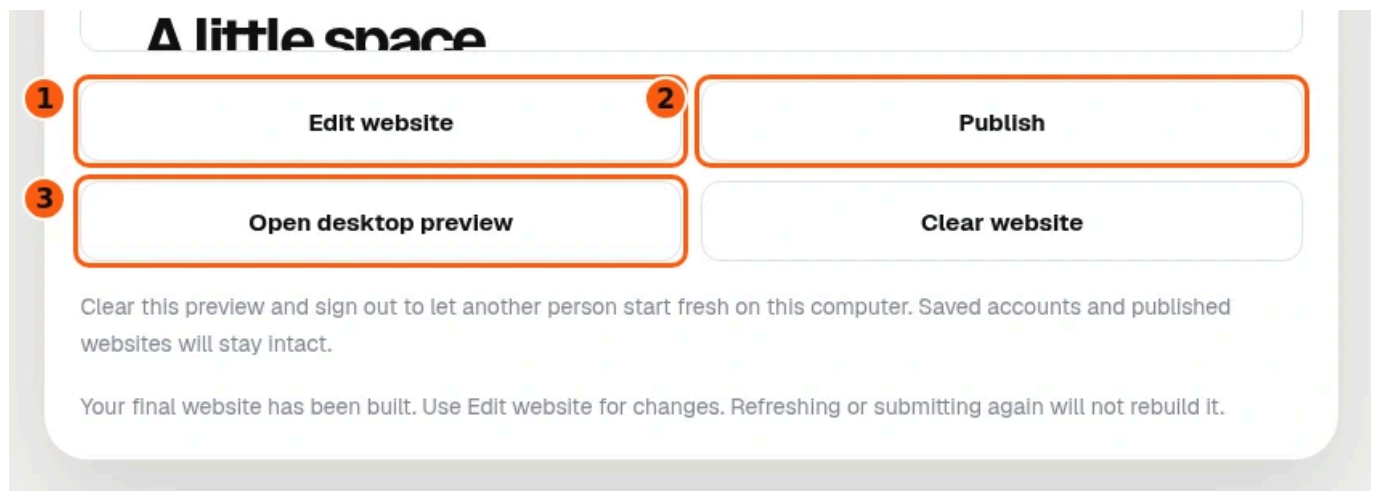

This fictional coffee-studio example is illustrative content rendered through the current backend's HTML renderer. It is not a claim that Bruno generated this design during documentation.

A ready preview is not automatically a public website. The next controls keep viewing, editing and publishing separate.

WHAT HAPPENS NEXT

You have a concrete website to review before choosing a launch package.

Choose viewing, editing or publishing

Atelier Demo - Example account and simulated responses.

- 1 Open the preview editor.
- 2 Choose a launch option.
- 3 Inspect a larger desktop view.

Edit website opens the visual preview editor. Open desktop preview gives you a larger view.

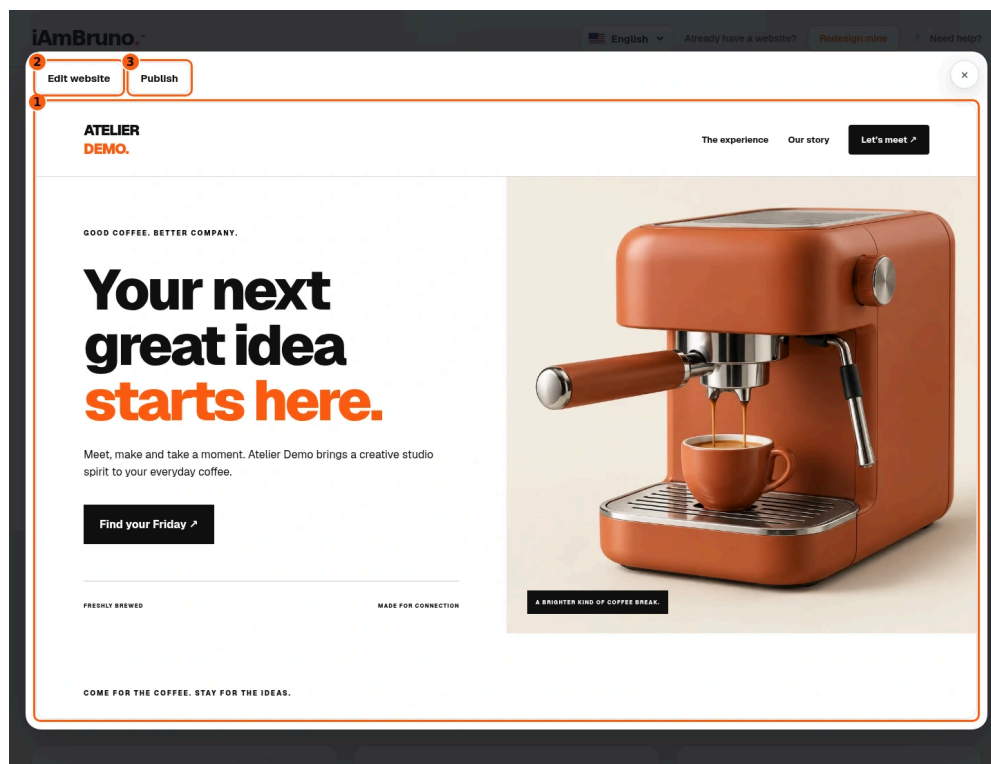

Publish opens the plan chooser; seeing that chooser does not itself buy a package. Review what the current plan includes before authorizing a purchase or free publication.

Clear website is a different action for clearing this browser's preview and signing out. Its scope is explained later in this guide.

WHAT HAPPENS NEXT

You can take the next action deliberately.

Use the larger view to check the design

Atelier Demo - Example account and simulated responses.

- 1 The larger website frame.
- 2 Switch to editing.
- 3 Open launch options.

Open desktop preview to inspect the page at a more useful size. Scroll through it and read the important copy.

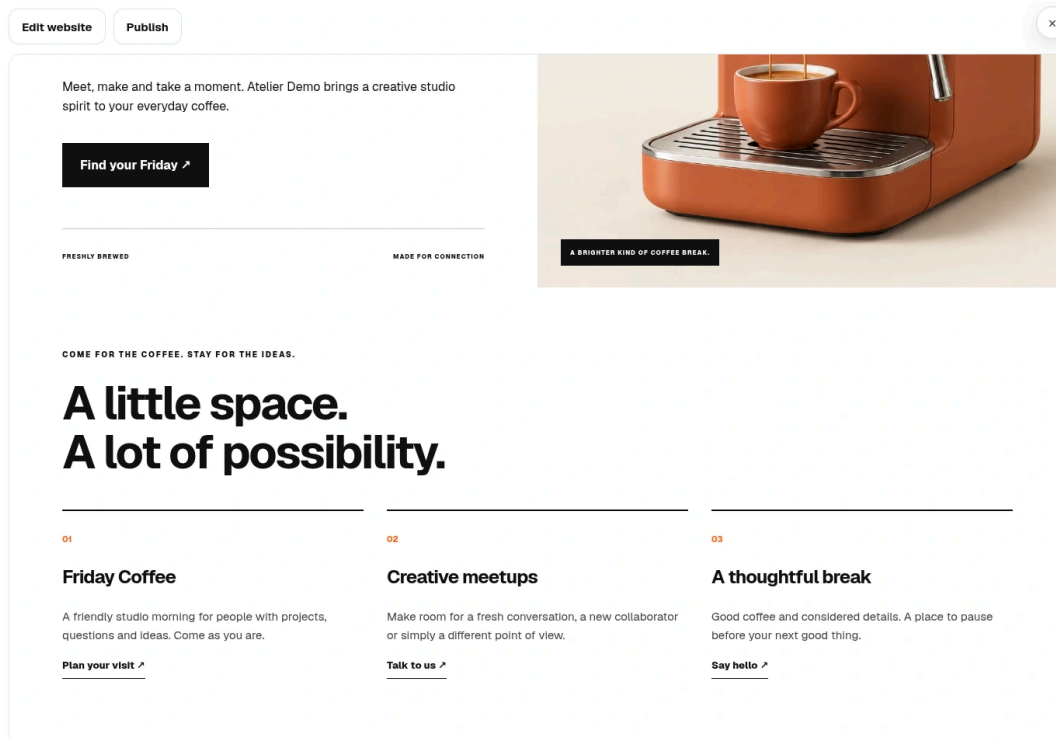

Edit website switches to the visual editing tools. Publish opens launch options. Neither a picture nor a preview contact form proves that a real enquiry has been delivered.

Some preview links and buttons open the plan chooser before publication. Close it to return; do not mistake it for a completed website action.

WHAT HAPPENS NEXT

You can inspect the design without accepting a paid package.

Read beyond the hero

Atelier Demo · Example account and simulated responses.

Scroll inside the larger preview to inspect the offers, story and contact sections. A strong first screen does not replace a factual review of the rest of the page.

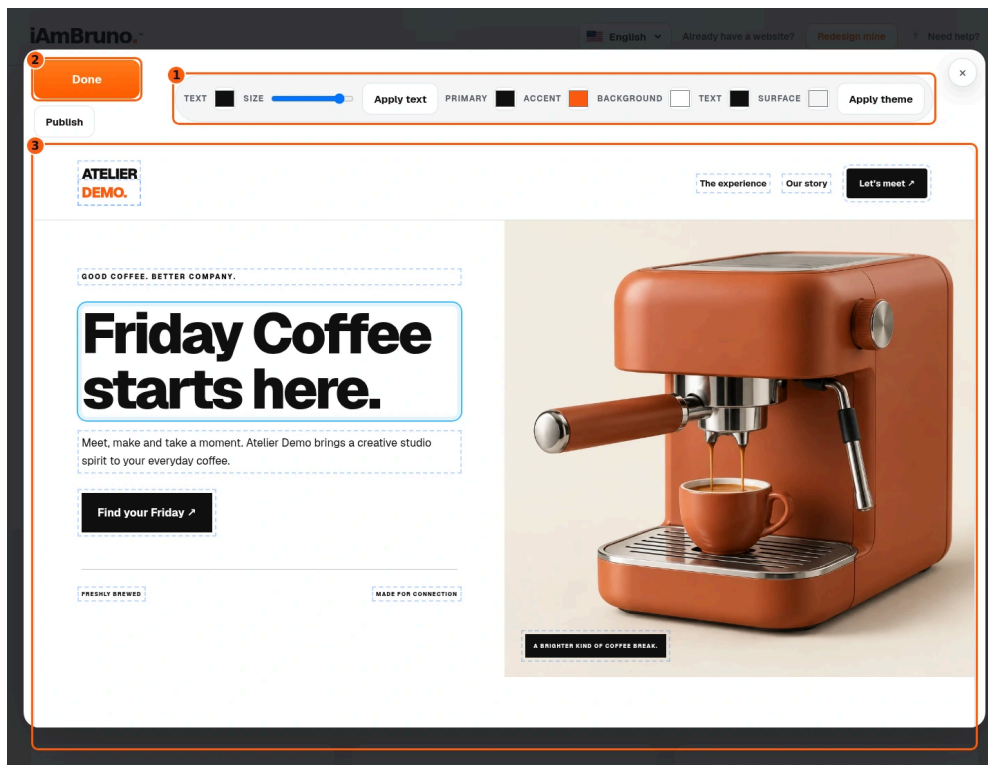

Check that the separate offers make sense, pictures match the intended subject and the visitor's next step is clear.

This is a different section of the same illustrative website, not another empty composer or a fabricated success message.

WHAT HAPPENS NEXT

You can spot a content problem before the site is published.

Make an optional text or color change

Atelier Demo · Example account and simulated responses.

- 1 The text and theme tools.
- 2 Save the edited preview.
- 3 The website being edited.

In Edit website, select text in the website frame and type a correction. The example changes the headline to Friday Coffee starts here.

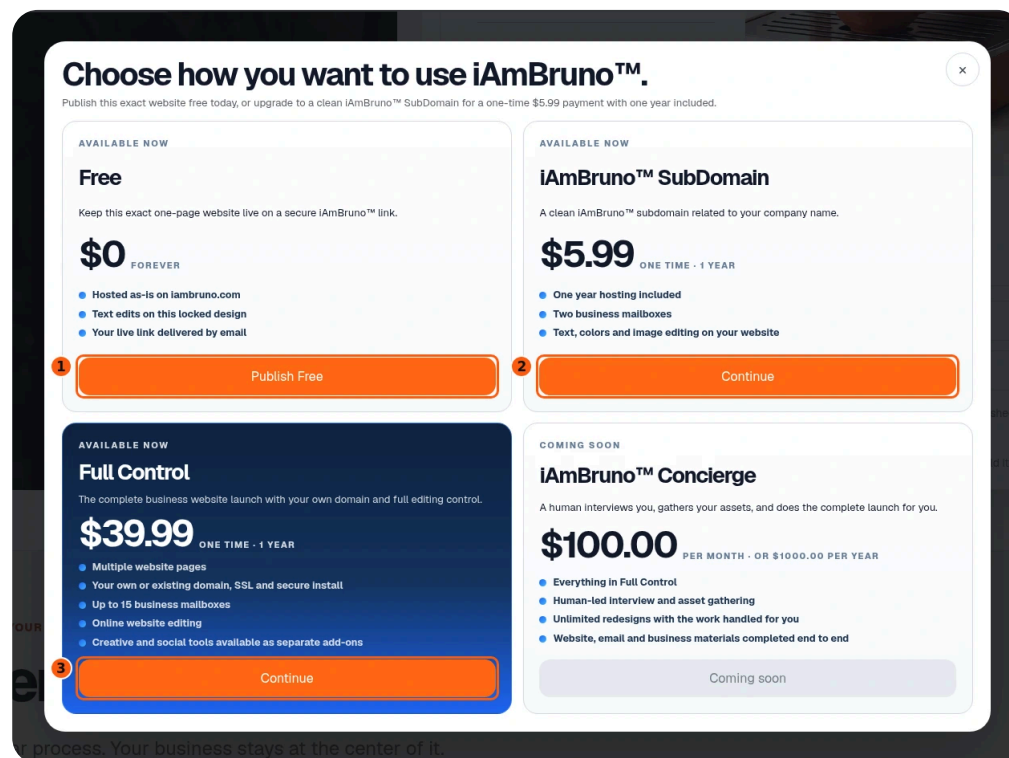

The toolbar offers text and theme color controls. Their effect depends on the selected element and the website's styling; inspect the actual result rather than assuming every color changes.

Choose Done to save these preview edits. This opens the plan chooser afterward; it does not silently pay for a launch.

WHAT HAPPENS NEXT

The saved preview contains your accepted correction.

Compare the launch options

Atelier Demo - Example account and simulated responses.

- 1 The free publication action.
- 2 The paid SubDomain option.
- 3 The paid Full Control option.

Free publishes on an iAmBruno link. It does not include a custom domain or business mailboxes; the free design remains locked with text editing.

SubDomain and Full Control are separate paid launch packages. Read the current displayed price, included hosting period, editing rights, domain and mailbox details. Creative subscriptions remain separate.

Choose only the package you intend. The following billing examples stop before PayPal authorization; the free example is also simulated.

WHAT HAPPENS NEXT

You can compare the consequences before authorizing publication or payment.

Review SubDomain billing before payment

The screenshot shows a mobile device displaying a web form titled "iAMBRUNO™ SUBDOMAIN" with the heading "Tell us who this belongs to." Below the heading, a note states: "Your email is already connected. Complete the billing details below, then approve the one-time payment securely with PayPal." The form contains several fields and sections:

- 1 A highlighted orange box at the top left shows the price: "$5.99 ONE TIME - 1 YEAR".
- 2 A highlighted light blue box shows the email address: "maya@example.com".
- 3 A highlighted orange box at the bottom shows the purchase terms: "You are buying iAmBruno™ SubDomain for a one-time payment of $5.99 USD, including one year of hosting. There is no automatic renewal."
- 4 A large orange button at the bottom right says "Continue to PayPal".

Other form fields include: First name (Maya), Last name (Example), Phone (+1 (305) 555-0180), Company name (Atelier Demo), Street address (123 Example Street), Apartment/suite/unit, City (Miami), State/province/region (FL), Postal code (33101), and Country (United States).

Proceed to payment only when intended.

The SubDomain form shows its one-time USD price and one year included. It is a launch purchase with no automatic renewal.

Check the linked email and your billing details. The displayed email comes from your saved account context; correct an account issue before proceeding.

Continue to PayPal advances to secure payment. No PayPal screens, order creation or charge are performed in this guide. A real paid launch remains pending until payment and setup succeed.

WHAT HAPPENS NEXT

You know what the SubDomain purchase will authorize before reaching PayPal.

Check the separate Full Control package

1 FULL CONTROL

Tell us who this belongs to.

Your email is already connected. Complete the billing details below, then approve the one-time payment securely with PayPal.

2 $39.99 ONE TIME - 1 YEAR

First name: Maya, Last name: Example, Email: maya@example.com, Phone: +1 (305) 555-0180, Company name optional: Atelier Demo, Street address: 123 Example Street, Apartment, suite, or unit optional: , City: Miami, State, province, or region: FL, Postal code: 33101, Country: United States

3 You are buying iAmBruno™ Full Control for a one-time payment of $39.99 USD, including one year of hosting. There is no automatic renewal.

Continue to PayPal

Atelier Demo - Example account and simulated responses.

- 1 The selected Full Control package.
- 2 Its own one-time price.
- 3 The included term and purchase conditions.

Full Control has its own displayed price and scope. Confirm the selected package before proceeding; it is different from the SubDomain purchase.

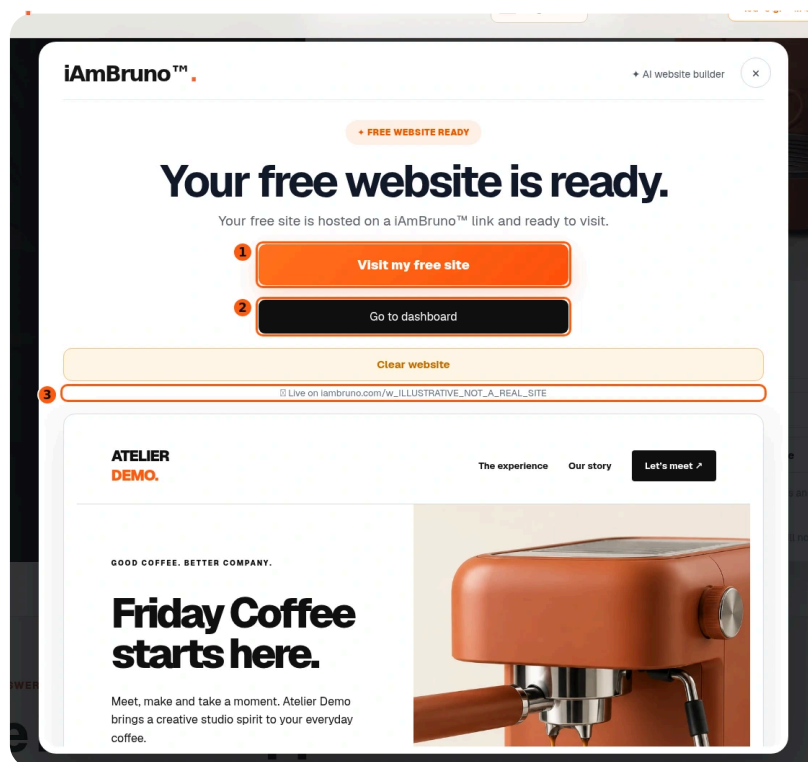

After successful payment, the actual flow offers a new domain search or an existing-domain path. Existing domains require the displayed DNS setup and verification; a domain is not live just because it was typed.

This guide stops before any payment, domain registration, DNS change or provisioning. Use the ready notice and Website dashboard for the real completed setup, rather than treating a checkout screen as proof of launch.

WHAT HAPPENS NEXT

You can decide whether this is the launch package you need.

Use the free-site link and dashboard

Atelier Demo - Example account and simulated responses.

- 1 Visit the resulting free website.
- 2 Open its dashboard.
- 3 The generated public link.

Publish Free performs publication in normal use. A successful result offers Visit my free site and Go to dashboard. Our response and public-looking link are fictional and inert.

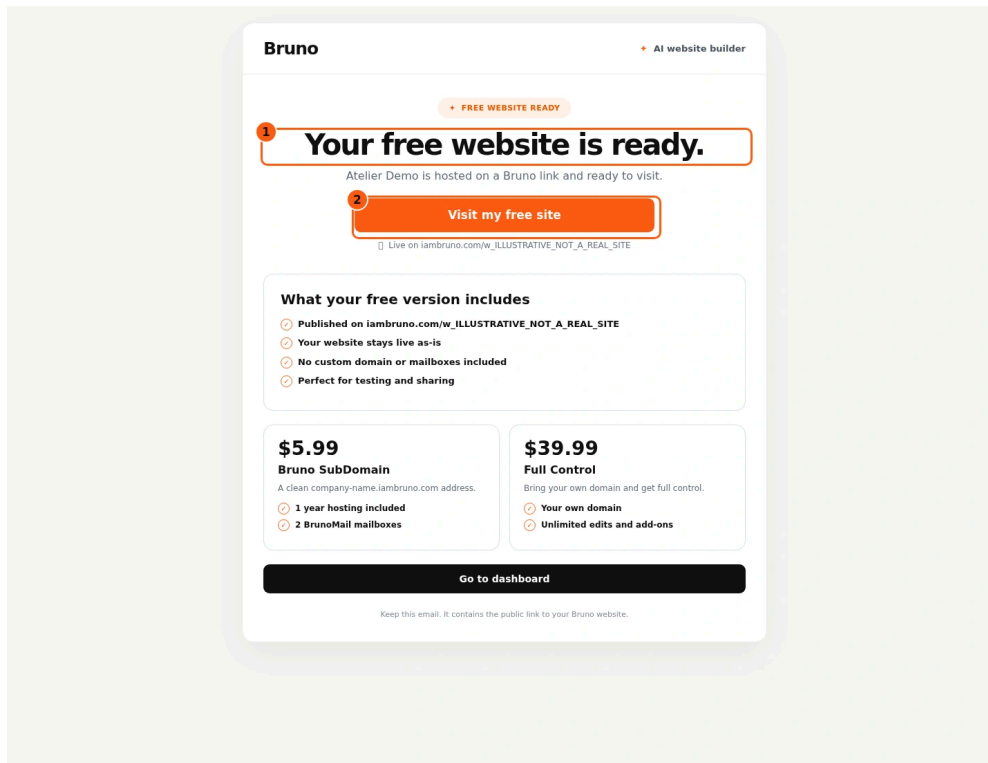

Free means hosting on the generated iAmBruno link, with the displayed free-plan limits. It does not purchase a custom domain or mailboxes.

Successful normal free activation opens an account session for the dashboard. If the service reports that the site is live but account access failed, follow that specific message instead of publishing repeatedly.

WHAT HAPPENS NEXT

A real successful activation provides the site link and dashboard access.

Keep the delivery email

Atelier Demo - Example account and simulated responses.

1 The website-ready message.

2 The site link in the email.

When delivery succeeds, the real free-site email includes the website link, the free-plan summary and a dashboard link. This picture uses the actual email renderer with fictional data; no message was sent.

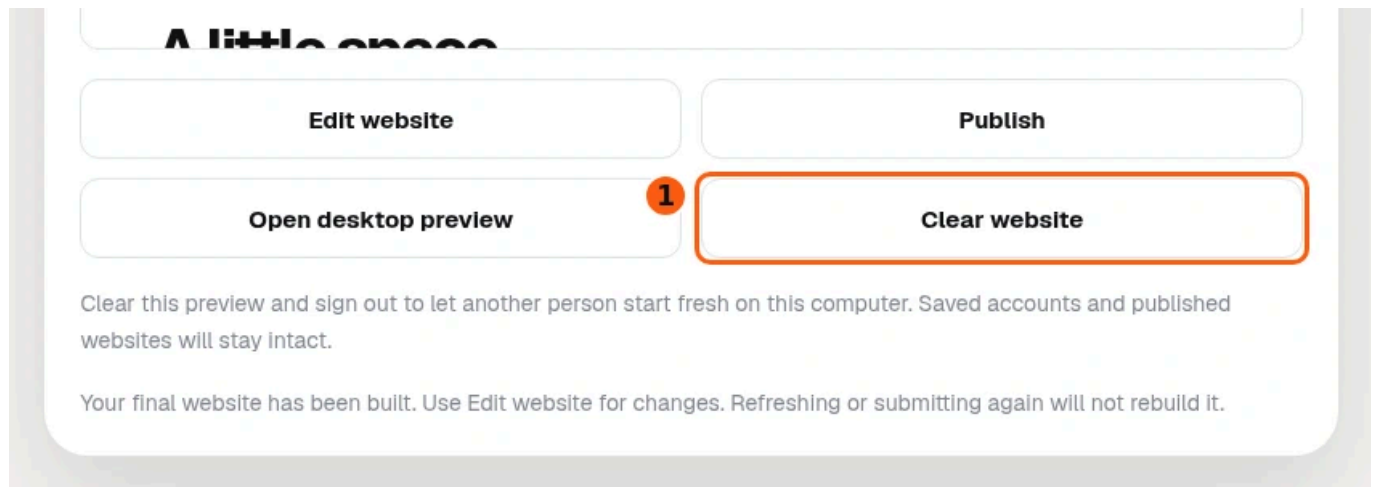

Keep your real link somewhere safe and use the intended account when opening the dashboard. Do not forward private account-access information casually.

If the interface says the link is ready but email delivery failed, use the displayed link and contact support as needed. Do not assume an email was sent without its success state.

WHAT HAPPENS NEXT

You can return to the site using the recorded real link.

Clear a shared browser without deleting your site

Atelier Demo · Example account and simulated responses.

- 1 The separate browser-reset action.

Clear website asks for confirmation before resetting this browser's preview and signing out. We cancel that confirmation in this example.

It leaves saved accounts and published websites intact. It is not a delete-account or unpublish command.

On a shared computer, keep your site link and account access first, then use this reset when another person should start their own preview.

WHAT HAPPENS NEXT

You can distinguish clearing a session from deleting a published website.

Below the title, there is a 'SERVICE' label and a toggle switch (1) which is currently turned on. The form contains two text input fields: the first (2) contains 'Friday Coffee hosting' and the second (3) contains 'A friendly creative studio morning for independent makers and local teams.
